Overview: Global medical technology company Becton Dickinson approached Engage Workplace to provide a modern bar style bench for the newly refurbished reception area. We were then asked for ideas and a proposal to furnish the area to make better use of the large open space that was now to be unmanned. We produced a planned layout to create a spill out break area for the training room immediately adjacent to the reception.

With modern café style furniture, contemporary lounge seating and bar stools around the bar we created a comfortable multi use area for the organisation utilising what would have been a large under used space
